

Geopost Write Up

Descriptions: Daoxu

Our group split up the project into sections for everyone to do. The sections respectively are index.html which is the home page. Index.html is the main loading page you come to after logging into Geopost. By default it shows you a map of the local area which you can move, zoom in, or zoom out to see different posts. Then on the right of the map you get to see a series of local posts along with their respective posters and votes as well as a place to make your own post. Written by Henrique

Profile shows you a specific person's posts as well as basic information about the person that can be adjusted through their security settings to be either follower only or public. It shows the recent posts by the selected profile as well as the time and location where it was posted, and the resulting votes. Each post has a link to see the full post and comments. Written by Daoxu

Profile Settings lets you change your user information and user settings, giving you the ability to customize your account to a certain degree. We currently have three sets of variables that can be changed through settings. User information, Security, Followers. Written by Kevin

Private messages is the only place where you can message someone without the message being public. This is a private chat between people and can be used as a texting app. Your current partner will be highlighted and if you have messages you missed shows how many of them there are This section was written by Phil

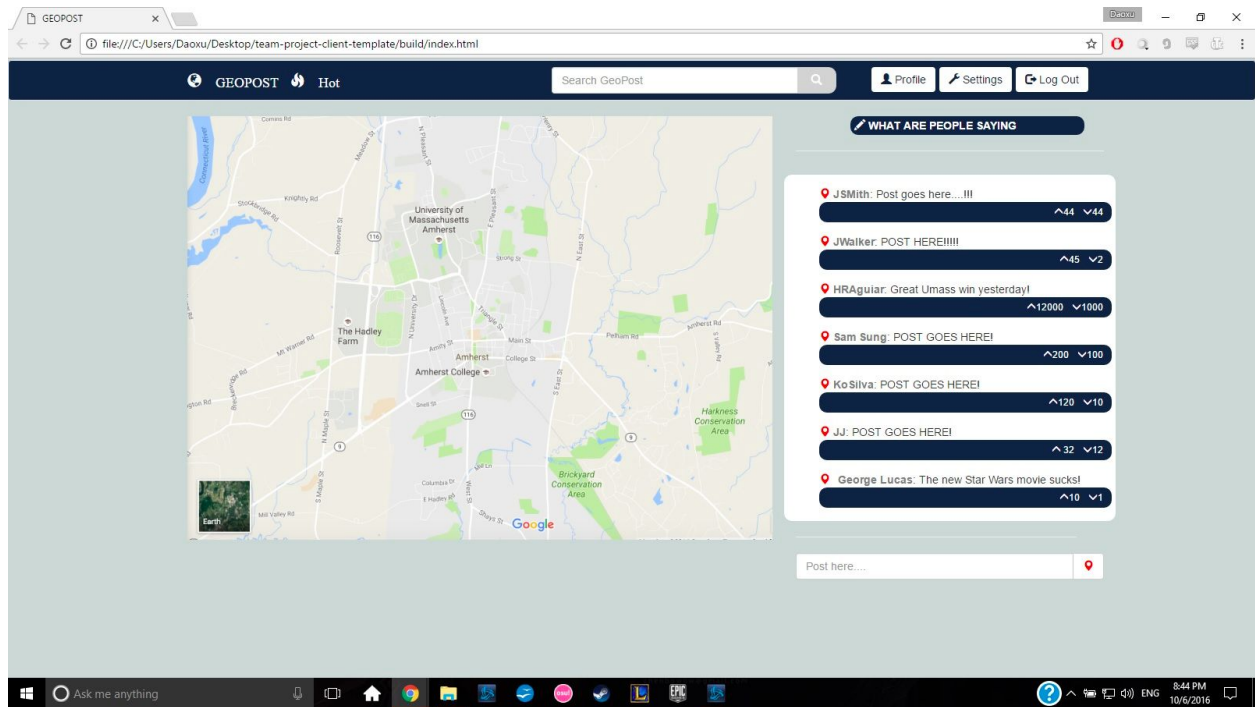

Hot shows what local posts have been very popular recently. There are separate setting available to let you filter based on time and location (including larger locations). This section was written by Mike

Search Result shows the top hits of what you were searching for. This shows the locations on a map, poster, time, post, votes, and comments of the resulting hits. If you scroll down, you can continue to get more and more search results, and if you click a post you can access the details of the post or search the location/poster. Written by Sam

We have a navigation bar at the top of each page which has links to home, hot, profile, settings, log out, and a search bar. This is made to always be at the top of your page no matter where you scroll to and provides a working link between the pages. The html was written by Henrique, Daoxu, and Sam. The css was written by Henrique and Sam. Please find the walkthrough below.

1.) Homepage!

This is where you'll see an interactive map displaying geolocated posts as markers, flanked by a feed of the posts in your area.

2.) Top Posts Page!

See the best of the best! Filter posts by different criteria.

3.) Messages Page!

See messages sent to your profile.

4.) Profile Page!

Check out your posts and info.

5.) Profile Settings Page!

Edit your profile!

6.) Search Results Page!

Search for posts...maybe ones with Lorem Ipsum?? But anything!

